

Moms Held As Call-Girls

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — A grand jury investigating an alleged vice ring of suburban Long Island housewives and mothers indicted 30 persons and 10 companies Tuesday on charges ranging from prostitution to grand larceny.

Among the defendants was Conchetta McAllister, 35, of Hicksville, mother of three, whom authorities said earned nearly $30,000 a year as the madam of the call girl ring while drawing $15,000 in welfare checks in the past five years.

A former Nassau County patrolman, John Beck, 30, of Wantagh was charged with helping her and another woman to offer their services as prostitutes, soliciting in public places for immoral purposes and neglect of police duty.

Alarm Out For Cop Killers

FREDERICKSBURG, Va. (AP) — Police hunted vainly Tuesday for clues in the slaying of two Fredericksburg policemen found shot to death behind a shopping center.

Investigators said a 13-state alarm had been sent out, but added they have no clues or suspects.

The bodies of Sgt. R. G. Wright, 31, and Patrolman William Frank Mines, 27, were discovered early Tuesday at the rear of the Park & Shop shopping center across the U. S. 1 bypass from Mary Washington College. They had been disarmed and their clothing looted.

Fulbright Meets Home in London

LONDON (AP) — U.S. Sen. J. W. Fulbright launched his Cyprus mission for President Johnson in talks Tuesday with Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home and other top British officials.

The aim of the Arkansas Democrat is to underscore U.S. concern over the communal fighting on Cyprus and to survey the crisis that threatens to weaken the North Atlantic Treaty Organization eastern flank.

Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, hopes also to meet the leaders of Greece and Turkey later this week.

Merger Closer For Methodists

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — The Methodist Church moved a step closer Tuesday to merger with the Evangelical United Brethren Church. But it failed to remove what could be an obstacle to union with four other denominations.

Some 900 delegates to the Methodist quadrennial general conference adopted an amendment to a plan of union with the EUB church that calls for a special general conference in 1966 and approves in principle the merger.

Johnson to Host Newsmen's Wives

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has invited White House reporters to bring their wives and children to a news conference to be held on the lawn of the executive mansion Wednesday afternoon.

George E. Reedy, Johnson's press secretary, said the conference will be held at 4:30 p.m. EDT and that television and radio networks will be permitted to make live broadcasts.

Baker Buddy Convicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fred B. Black Jr., Washington public relations man and business associate of former Senate aide Bobby Baker, was convicted Tuesday of evading $91,000 in federal income taxes.

His attorneys announced immediately they would ask for a new trial and, if refused, take the case to the U.S. Court of Appeals.

Blue Chips Gain On Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market Tuesday stretched its recovery drive through its third straight session as some blue chips made substantial gains.

Trading was fairly active. Volume was 5.35 million shares compared with Monday's 5.37 million.

Pocono 'Port Plans Hangar

MT. POCONO — The Mt. Pocono Airport Authority last night unveiled plans for a $111,000 building project at the airport and then changed its name to the Pocono Mountains Airport Authority.

At a meeting in the Mt. Pocono Borough building, Edward Caruthers of Buck Hill Falls, authority architect, displayed preliminary plans and figures calling for a 80 by 100 foot hangar building with office and waiting room space and 10 T-shaped hangars.

The authority also approved a cancellation agreement with Aero-Mod, Inc., a firm that has been operating the airport for the past year. The agreement will now be sent for ratification to the six townships and one borough who sponsor the airport along with the Monroe County commissioners.

Acting on a suggestion offered by county commissioner Stuart Pipher, the authority will send questionnaires to sponsors in an effort to determine if they will go along with a suggested quarter mill tax on current real estate assessments.

Currently the airport is getting one-half mill contribution based on 1951 assessments. All supervisors present expressed opinions the proposed building project will be beneficial to the airport's operation.

Activity at the airport has been bogged down because of inadequate facilities the authority has maintained.

Pipher told the supervisors the proposed quarter mill tax, which would be in effect until 1970, would produce approximately $112,000.

Roger Miller, authority treasurer, said the quarter mill tax would be cutting things "very fine" and suggested that a half mill tax might be needed.

Caruthers gave the following breakdown on building costs: Main hangar, $50,050; offices and waiting rooms, $30,211; architect's fee, $3,500; paving around the main hangar, $6,088; 10 T-shaped hangars, $29,000, and paving at the hangars, $8,900.

He said approximately $16,000 can be cut from these figures by making adjustments in the type of equipment used.

Airport sponsors are the townships of Coolbaugh, Tunkhannock, Tobyhanna, Barrett, Pocono and Paradise; the Borough of Mt. Pocono and the county commissioners.

Geneva (AP) — The United States and the European Common Market agreed late Tuesday night to make a 50 per cent across-the-board tariff cut on the working basis of the Kennedy round talks on freeing world trade.

The decision came at the end of a long day of backstage argument between officials of the two giants of world trade.

They also agreed to set Sept. 10 as the deadline for submitting a list of items to be considered as exception to the general negotiating plan. The submission of these lists will mark the beginning of down-to-earth bargaining on tariff cuts.

Britain went along with Tuesday night's agreement, which is virtually certain to be approved Wednesday at a plenary session of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade—GATT.

A last-minute hitch developed at the formal opening of the Kennedy round Monday when French Finance Minister Valéry Giscard d'Estaing objected to wording which would have made a 50 per cent cut the unchangeable target of the negotiations.

Under Tuesday's compromise offers will be made on the assumption of a 50 per cent cut, but no country is formally committed to it.

The final average cut may be considerably lower.

A 50 per cent cut is the maximum authorized by the U.S. Trade Expansion Act of 1962 which became law mainly due to the personal initiative of the late President John F. Kennedy.

The agreement declared that the 50 per cent cut would be the "working hypothesis" of the Kennedy round.

The main negotiators of the compromise were W. Michael Blumenthal of the United States and Robert Marjolin, vice president of the Common Market commission.

The announcement of the deal was printed here as a Washington dispatch reported rumors are flying once again among Cuban exiles in the United States that new efforts will be made soon to topple Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

Castro has declared Cuba will use all means at its disposal to stop them. President Johnson's administration has announced they will continue as a precaution against another secret missile buildup, and warned against armed interference.

The reaction in Washington was negative to both the new Cuban charges and to the rumors among the exiles that Castro's regime will become subject to attack soon from both within and without.

The U. S. State Department said it knew nothing about the alleged plan for terrorism. And U. S. officials appeared surprised when asked about the rumors. They said they had no information, though they said they recalled reading a recent statement by Manolo Ray, now living in Puerto Rico, that he and other exiled leaders would be fighting inside Cuba by May 20.

The reports among the exiles, persistent in both Washington and Miami, were that striking units would come from areas other than the United States and would operate in small bands rather than as a single expeditionary force, such as failed at the Bay of Pigs in 1961.

9 Yanks Killed In Viet Nam Crash

TAN HIEP, South Viet Nam (AP) — Smoke streamed from the port engine of a U.S. Army Caribou transport on a takeoff Tuesday with 15 men, and seconds later the plane crashed, plunging all aboard to death in flames.

Nine Americans were known to have perished in the crash—the worst American military air disaster in Viet Nam—and a U.S. military spokesman in Saigon said he was under the

Horseshoes Pitched In Sales Pitch

LONDON (AP) — One of the royal family's favorite department stores has brought to Britain that highly democratic American game of horseshoe-pitching.

An advertisement in Tuesday afternoon papers proclaimed: "Horseshoe-pitching set. This popular American game can be enjoyed in any open space by two players of any age. Set comprises 2 stakes on rubber bases and 4 stiff rubber horseshoes."

The asking price was $7.85. Said a store, Harrods, spokesman in answer to a question: "No, we don't expect American horseshoe-pitching to replace cricket, but we do expect it to become popular."

If it does, Britons had better not call it horseshoe-pitching in front of any old time horseshoe pitcher from the United States, where pitching rubber shoes is kid's stuff and the real game is played with iron shoes weighing up to 2½ pounds.

"Do you expect horseshoe pitching to catch on in the grounds of royal palaces?" the store spokesman was asked.

After a stunned silence, he replied: "I say. That's hardly a proper question, you know."

Ravished Girl Bids Aid, But 40 People Just Stare

NEW YORK (AP) — A nude, ravished girl fled screaming from her attacker to the very threshold of a Bronx office building, where she pleaded with onlookers to help her. But some 40 of them failed to aid her.

Patrolman Norman Brown recounted the latest tale of metropolitan indifference Tuesday in Bronx Criminal Court. There George Coughlin, 26, married and the father of two children, was held in $7,500 bail as the daylight rapist who attacked Olga Romero 18, on Monday afternoon. Coughlin denied the charge.

Said Brown: "Forty people could have helped that girl yesterday, but none of the jerks helped her."

The slim, 5-foot victim was overpowered in a second-floor office of a building on busy East Tremont Avenue in the Bronx. She was at work alone as a telephone operator.

Police have complained increasingly of late of the failure of New Yorkers to assist assault victims, lest they become involved in distasteful situation.

Last March, Catherine Genovese, 28, was stabbed to death on a quiet Queens residential street after dark. Police said at least 38 neighbors heard her cries for help but ignored them.

Her assailant threatened her with a razor, beat her, stripped her and raped her. She finally broke free and fled down the stairway, screaming: "Help me, help me!" He raped me, he raped me!"

About 20 persons were attracted to the doorway of the building, but made no move to help the girl. Miss Romero fell the last few steps to the first-floor landing, where her attacker pounced on her, wrapped his jacket around her and tried to force her back upstairs.

Again the girl screamed: "Help me, help me! I've been raped."

But this time the crowd of onlookers had grown to 40. But they stood silent and immobile, heedless of the girl's pleas.

Finally Brown and Patrolman Edmund Woods, attracted by the girl's screams, arrived on the scene.

British Battle Bedouins

THUMAIR, South Arabian Federation (AP) — A company of British paratroopers fought fierce Bedouin rebels under a pitiless desert sun Tuesday in a conflict that an officer said might become another Korea.

The 120 Britons fought hand to hand with the Bedouins, known as the Red Wolves of Hadram, in a mud hut village and scattered them.

Then the paratroopers themselves were pinned down in the village when the Bedouins occupied the encircling hills.

As evening brought relief from the 110-degree heat, the paratroopers surged from the village and seized the hill positions. The British had been pinned down for nearly 12 hours.

The paratroopers lost two dead and 10 wounded. At least six rebels were killed. The wounded all were removed by air to the big British Middle East base of Aden, 50 miles south of this oasis headquarters.

There were unconfirmed reports that Yemen, which has accused Britain of air raids on frontier forts, was trying to slip 300 soldiers down from the north to support the Bedouins.

"Fighting could go on for weeks," said Brig. Louis Hargroves, commanding operations in this region. "The rebels may decide to talk turkey, but if they don't this could become another Korea."

As Hargroves spoke, two Hunter jets of the Royal Air Force blasted mud-walled rebel forts near the paratrooper-held village with rockets and cannon.

Wallace Weaker In Indiana Vote

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Democratic Gov. Matthew E. Welsh captured Indiana's presidential primary for President Johnson Tuesday night, while Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace drew a heavy protest vote — but apparently fell short of his Wisconsin showing.

Republican Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona grabbed the state's 52 GOP National Convention votes, despite a stronger-than-expected showing by Harold Stassen, his only serious rival.

Wallace, who campaigned as a champion of states' rights and conservatism and a foe of Johnson's civil rights bill, halted his showing as a victory for his cause.

With 1,778 of 4,416 precincts counted, Welsh had 153,804 votes to 72,750 for Wallace. Three minor candidates split a scattering of ballots.

Goldwater 114,103 votes in 1,427 precincts to 45,398 for Stassen. With two minor candidates on the ballot, Stassen had 26.1 per cent of the GOP vote.

Democrats had expected some Republicans to cross party lines to vote for Wallace, some in protest against Welsh and the sales tax he fought into law, and others to express their opposition to civil rights demonstrators. Crossovers are permitted, but voters who switched and were challenged had to sign what amounted to general election loyalty oaths to the party whose ballot they chose.

Wallace campaigned against the civil rights bill, and said he stood for constitutional government and conservatism.

Stassen appeared to have made some headway with his quest for Republican votes as a representative of all the candidates opposing Goldwater for the GOP presidential nomination.

Write-in votes were not counted in the Indiana balloting, and Stassen said he would let the state's GOP delegation go its way at the San Francisco convention next July if he won the primary.

Five congressmen who faced opposition for renomination appeared headed for easy victories as early returns were counted.

They are House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck, Republican Rep. William G. Bray, Republican Ralph Harvey and Democrats Winfield K. Denton and Ray J. Madden.

A tight race was on in Marion County — the Indiana peninsula area — for the Republican and Democratic nominations to seek the House seat of Rep. Donald C. Bruce, a Republican, seeks convention backing for a Senate race against Democrat Sen. Vance Hartke.

Wallace, fresh from an upset showing in the Wisconsin presidential primary, came to Indiana nearly a month ago to woo voters as the candidate of constitutional government and conservatism — and to denounce Johnson's civil rights bill.

He denied it was a campaign of hate or racism.

Welsh, a mild-mannered lawyer nearing the end of his four-year term as governor, waged a tough campaign aimed personally at Wallace and at Alabama's record in race relations.

Truax said the party leaders who have contacted him "have accepted that Scranton's position is the proper one." Scranton wants Pennsylvania's 64-vote delegation to go to the San Francisco GOP convention uncommitted. In last week's primary election Scranton forces captured upwards of 60 delegates. Of the rest only one has announced outright support for another presidential prospect — U.S. Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

The Pennsylvania delegation will organize in Philadelphia May 22, at 1 p.m. EDT. Scranton is expected to be named chairman.

Truax said the Pennsylvania delegation is "caught up in" the presidential question. "We are directly involved."

As long as Scranton is in the presidential picture the Pennsylvania delegation will be a force to reckon with at the convention, he said.

Taft's victory would give him compelling voice in determining where the 58-vote GOP presidential nominating delegation would turn after it fulfilled its obligation to support GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes on the first ballot of San Francisco.

Rhodes himself appeared likely to win a vote of confidence in his pinch-penny state administration in the indicated approval of a $500-million highway bond issue.

These results appeared to add up to bad news for Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater in his bid for the Republican presidential nomination.

Brown, who was trounced after a glittering record of 14 years of Ohio vote-getting, had all but endorsed Goldwater. A sizeable number of the individual convention delegates elected seemed personally inclined to the Arizona senator.

But Taft, a delegate to the convention, Rhodes and GOP State Chairman Ray Bliss declined to commit themselves to any aspirant.

For Taft the senatorial contest represented a vital turning point in a political career which could parallel in some respects that of his late illustrious father Sen. Robert A. Taft.

If his victory in the primary were followed by a November win, Taft would be certain to be projected into the speculation for the Republican presidential nomination either in 1968, or, if the GOP wins this year's battle with President Johnson, four years later.

Rep. Green To Marry

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — William H. Green III recently elected to fill the unexpired term of his late father in the U.S. House of Representatives, is getting married.

The engagement of Miss Patricia Anne Kirk of Philadelphia to Green was announced Tuesday by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice T. Kirk.

Green said the wedding date is June 13.

"Due to the proximity of my dad's death," Green said, "the wedding will be quiet, with just family and close friends invited."

His father, Rep. William J. Green Jr., died last Dec. 21. He was chairman of the city's Democratic organization for 10 years.

Blatts Lead Cut To 3,001

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — official returns from six counties have reduced Genevieve Blatt's overall lead over Justice Michael A. Musmanno by 149 votes—to 3,001 in their race for the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senate.

Miss Blatt led by 3,144 votes in the latest unofficial tabulation—returns from all but 10 of the state's 9261 precincts.

Musmanno picked up a net 164 votes in Lackawanna County and 64 in Bucks County. Miss Blatt, who lost 20 votes in Union on the official county, added 99 net in Cambria. Two counties, Northumberland and Snyder had the same official figures as were the unofficial returns.

Flashing Lights Banned In State

HARRISBURG (AP) — The state has banned flashing red and white lights as acceptable equipment on emergency vehicles such as fire trucks or ambulances, ruling it is illegal to approve them for inspection.

The Montgomery County Firemen's Association raised the issue this week when it vigorously opposed enforcement of the order. The firemen claimed that the red and white lights could be seen more clearly than the standard all-red lights.

However, John P. Harrington, legal counsel for the state Traffic Safety Bureau, noted in an opinion dated Dec. 23, 1963:

"There is no provision (in the state's motor vehicle code) for a combination of flashing lights of any colors for use on emergency vehicles."

Old Cemetery

'God's Acre' In Delaware Gap

By Nellie Burd
Record Correspondent

DELAWARE WATER GAP—There is one spot in Delaware Water Gap, referred to by the senior citizens of the community as "God's Acre," that is a memorial to unselfish community spirit of years ago.

"God's Acre" is the cemetery at Greenwood Ave. and Foxtown Hill Rd.

It was given to the community with no recompense by one of the early families, Abraham and Susanna Newhart, in 1844.

The first person buried in the cemetery was Elizabeth Newhart, who died at the early age of 26 days. Her head stone reads, "Her body was the first one buried in this graveyard."

Another old stone, now fallen over, is inscribed, "Here lies the obedient youth, SUSAN, A one year old girl."

When the cemetery was first opened and used all bodies were laid to rest facing the east. Also, all the plots were free and the paupers dug the graves without charge.

The original lot given by the Newhart family was 120 feet by 200 feet deep. Since that time several tracts of land have been purchased. The state took a 60 foot piece of the cemetery, an "L" shape piece that reached out to Walnut Lane.

In the cemetery are many graves of veterans. The first is that of George Armistage. He was 31 at time of death and was buried in 1861. Another tombstone lists 18 battles the man participated in.

John J. Burd, a veteran of the Civil War, has no battles listed on his tombstone, but he participated in 21 battles and was wounded twice. He was wounded first at the Bull Run. The second wound was received in "Devil's Den" during the three-day battle of Gettysburg.

Another tombstone a tall one has eight names on it. The ages of the people range from six to 60 years. There were the chil-

Tocks Hearings Hang In Balance

WASHINGTON (AP) — The key to creation of a national recreation area around the proposed Tocks Island Reservoir in New Jersey and Pennsylvania may be whether or not Congress returns to work after the Republican National Convention this summer.

Hearings on a proposed recreation area around the giant 37-mile reservoir on the Delaware River have not yet been scheduled this year, although both the House and Senate Interior Committees promised hearings early this year.

The Senate has passed the Tocks Island recreation bill. It died in the House in the 87th Congress.

Thus the bill's fate seems to rest with the House Interior Committee. An aide said hearings couldn't be scheduled for at least a month. Then, he said, there probably wouldn't be time for the House and Senate to act before quitting for the conventions.

However, if Congress goes back to Washington after the Republican convention, the bill would stand a better chance for final passage this year.

Sexy Mice Or Sexy Men Energetic

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Sexy animals are energetic and robust, whether they be mice or men, a leading researcher said this week.

While ancient tribes considered reproductive capacity a sign of physical strength, medical support for such thinking did not become available until the turn of the century, said Dr. Arthur L. Beyer.

Now, he said, it is well known that the same male hormones that produce remanent stimulus also have a major role in converting the protein into muscle tissue.

Beyer is assistant director of the Sterling-Winthrop Research Institute's biology division at Rensselaer, N. Y. He spoke at the opening session of a medical seminar sponsored by Hahnemann Medical College.

As early as the 1930s, Beyer said, crude extracts of male hormones and later purified testosterone were used to treat illnesses characterized by insufficient strength or inadequate growth.

The drawback of such treatments, he said, was that they upset the hormone balance of the body.

Development of synthetic steroid hormones has changed all this in recent years, he said.

Chemical modifications have given doctors several synthetic hormones that are useful when weight gains and body-building are therapeutically desirable.

None is completely free of masculine effects, Beyer said, but in several the ratio of tissue-building to undesired effects has been favorably changed.

Mentally Ill In Line For Hospitals

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Arlin Adams, state secretary of public welfare, said Tuesday Pennsylvania's mental hospitals have fewer residents than at any time since 1950, even though the state's population is greater.

"However," Adams said, "they (the hospitals) continue to have long waiting lists for the mentally retarded."

Adams spoke at a one-day conference sponsored by the Health and Welfare Council under a grant made by the Philadelphia Foundation.

Adams said the mental health program being pushed by the Serrano administration has made great advances.

One of the bright spots in the welfare picture is the fact that more key businessmen are accepting responsible volunteer roles, he said.

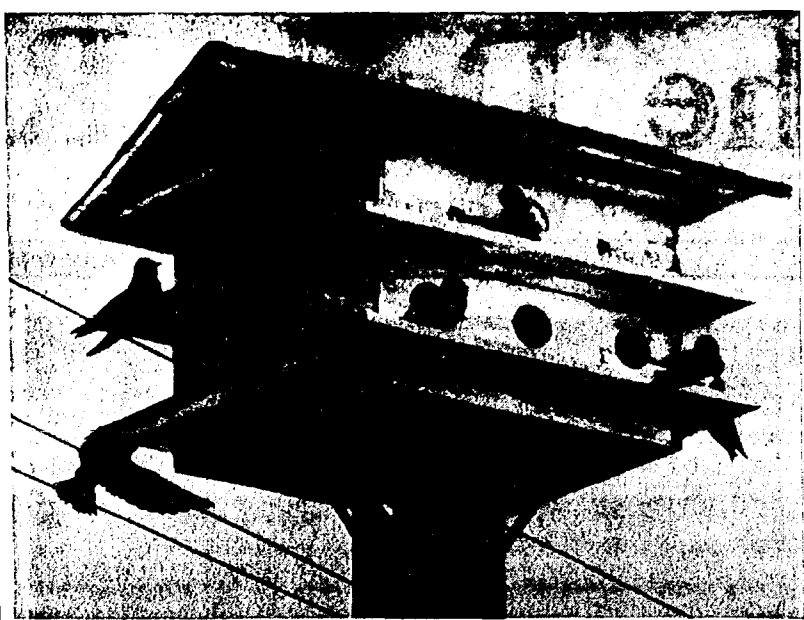

Adams contrasted this with the past when, he said, many such businessmen were skeptical of public welfare programs.

Adams said that when the Serrano administration took over the state government "almost half a million people were on the public assistance rolls." In the first seven months of the Serrano administration, the secretary claimed, "the number of relief recipients was dramatically reduced by more than 60,000."

The economy of the Watusi tribe in Africa was a kind of cattle feudalism. A Watusi's wealth, prestige and political position depended on the size of his herd.

Hectic World In Short

How can modern art lovers rationalize or justify this news account carried by the Associated Press from Omaha??

Who threw the overalls in Milton Wolsky's paint jar?

Wolsky did, of course. And now he's won an art show with them.

The Omaha artist used parts of the overalls in a composition he calls "Omaha-6064." The work won the top $100 purchase award Monday in the Governor's Invitational Art Show.

He also used a patch from a plaid shirt and a belt buckle as centers of interest in the creation which he calls "a very personal thing."

"There's really not much I can say about it (that makes sense)," he said.

Wolsky recalled he bought the overalls in New York 15 years ago "so I could paint there and look like an artist." When they wore out, "I thought I'd destroy them, I thought I'd enshrine them," he added.

When a country doesn't have free enterprise, it really has to make decisions.

Take this week for example.

After months of study, the Soviet Union decided to reduce the price of watches and clocks by 19 per cent.

This decision was made by the Soviet cabinet. Reporting the high level decision earlier this week, Tass, the official news agency also said the price of accordions will also be cut.

Ton had the Russians never heard of the supply and demand curve.

Does this little account shatter your image of the quiet, composed, suffering Gandhi-type Indian?

Rioting over an increase in bus fares broke out again this week in New Delhi.

Police arrested 26 persons bringing the total held to 70. The Indians hurled rocks at helmeted police, who dispersed them with bamboo batons.

An Iowa congressman says sabbaticals should be arranged for Foreign Service officers so they could learn more about the American people by getting out and living among them.

Rep. Fred Schwengel, a Republican, told the House Foreign Affairs Committee he believes U.S. policy has "suffered from a lack of communication between the government and the public."

Zoe had her first flight. The fledgling whooping crane hatched by a bantam hen in Louisiana last week has been moved to Colorado.

Zoe was taken by plane.

There is a cycle in which water is evaporated from the oceans, carried by air masses, precipitated as rain or snow, returned to the ocean by surface flow and percolation, or returned to the atmosphere by evaporation and transpiration of plants.

GOP, Democrats Agree More Than Half The Time

By Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON—Democratic and Republican majorities agreed on more than half of all issues settled by roll-call votes in Congress in 1963.

Fifty-two per cent of the 348 roll calls were settled by cross-the-board agreement of Democrats and Republicans.

Such "bipartisan" voting occurred 53 per cent of the time in the Senate and 51 per cent of the time in the House.

Of the 162 victories on roll call chalked up by the late President Kennedy in the 1963 session, 60 came on bipartisan votes. Of these, 42 came in the Senate and 18 came in the House.

Of Mr. Kennedy's 19 defeats, four came on bipartisan votes. The average Democrat in Congress supported bipartisan majorities 71 per cent of the time and opposed them 11 per cent of the time.

The average Republican voted with the bipartisan line-up 71 per cent of the time and opposed it 14 per cent of the time. Conservatives Least 'Bipartisan'

Among Democrats in both chambers, the highest opposition scores were registered by Southwesterners—generally the conservative element of the party.

Similarly, conservative Republicans in both chambers registered the highest scores in opposition to bipartisan majorities. Many of the bipartisan votes were on noncontroversial issues. Prominent among these were roll calls to demonstrate national unity, such as the unanimous Senate vote and near-unanimous House vote approving the 1963 defense appropriations.

Other apparently noncontroversial roll-call votes. Examples include many final votes on appropriation bills.

Outstanding among the bipartisan votes in both chambers were the votes on mental re-

State's Revenues Go Up

HARRISBURG — (UPI) — Pennsylvania's General Fund revenue collections topped estimates by approximately $5.1 million last month, bringing the total revenue surplus over estimates for the fiscal year to $8 million, the Office of Administration reported Tuesday.

It had been estimated that the revenue surplus for the full year would be $10.4 million.

Collections in April totaled $201.4 million, of which $132.2 million were corporation taxes and $39.5 million education sales and use tax.

The report said that with the exception of cigarette taxes—which were $371,000 under the estimate for April—all consumption taxes adhered closely to predictions. Liquor tax collections were within $32,000 of the estimate for the month.

For the first 10 months of fiscal 1963-64, collections totaled $841.2 million compared with $713.9 million in a similar period of the last fiscal year.

Six Eastburg Filtration Plant Contracts Awarded

EAST STROUDSBURG—East Stroudsburg Council last night awarded six contracts for the building of the Middle Reservoir Intake and Filtration Plant. Burly Construction Corp. was awarded the bid for the intake reservoir, the bid was $397,140. Vanguard Construction Corp. received the bid for the filtration plant buildings and structures. The bid was $487,985. The plumbing contract was awarded to H. C. Archibald Co. at a bid of $4,447. The same firm won the heating and ventilation contract at a bid of $7,947. Eastern Electro Construction Co. received the bid for electrical equipment, wiring and appurtenances. Their bid was $9,250. All contracts were awarded subject to the approval and concurrence of the Housing and Home Finance Agency. In other business, council approved a resolution, subject to the approval of Atty. Charles Bensinger — solicitor for the council — allowing the council to approve the Urban Renewal Plan and feasibility of relocation for the Courtland Street Project. Also, passed was council's participation in the repaving and widening of Federal St. This is in conjunction with the resolution and is estimated to cost the borough $4,700. Council, after a long discussion, approved contacting the Metropolitan Edison Company and getting a plan to place street lights on East Broad St.

The utility company will make its plan known at the adjourned meeting, Monday, May 18. Residents Request The action was taken after several residents on East Broad St. appeared last night and requested council to erect the lights. Mrs. Joan Krueger asked council if and when a systematic enforcement program of the planning and zoning codes in the borough will go into effect? She also asked council about installing fluoridation equipment at the new filtration plant. William Schnaitman, council president, told her that her first question would be referred to Atty. Bensinger. Schnaitman hoped an answer to the question would be known by the next council meeting. The second question asked by Mrs. Krueger was referred to Edward Hess, borough engineer. He will make a study of equipment and costs and report at the next meeting. Council told Sterling Cramer, borough manager, to advertise for water meters to be placed at schools, East Stroudsburg State College, and the General Hospital of Monroe County. Council did not specify how many meters were needed. Council authorized advertising for police examination. The secretary was told to place the advertisement today.

Planners 4-2 For Courtland St. Project

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Planning Commission last night approved the Courtland St. redevelopment project in East Stroudsburg and voted to hire a county planning director. A resolution urging the county 4.5-acre, $417,123 project, was passed 4 to 2. Vance C. Megargel of Cresco and Mrs. Grace Palmer of East Stroudsburg voted against the resolution. They said they did not want to vote for a resolution which stated that the planning commission had studied the project, when they hadn't, and they wanted to know more details before endorsing it. Both said they favored the project, however. Megargel, Mrs. Palmer and Joseph Lisicky, executive secretary of the commission, questioned a cost estimate of $111,481 for "survey, planning and project administration."

Grand Jury Indicts Seven On Gambling Conspiracy

STROUDSBURG — Seven men were indicted yesterday by a Monroe County Grand Jury on charges of conspiring to establish a gambling place. The gambling case was one of seven true bills brought in by the Grand Jury. The jury failed to return indictments in two other cases. James R. Marsh, Monroe County district attorney, presented the commonwealth's cases. Indicted on gambling conspiracy charges were Allen B. Bessecker of Snyder'sville, Philip Sabatine of Saylorsburg (two counts), Floyd Koehler of Stroudsburg, Giovanni B. Dales-

County Below State Level's Relief Rolls

Record Harrisburg Bureau HARRISBURG — The State Department of Public Welfare reported today that 2.5 per cent of the population of Monroe County appeared on March relief rolls. This percentage figure compares with the statewide total of 3.8 per cent for the month. A breakdown of 1056 persons receiving aid in the county shows that 677 in the aid to dependent children group were the largest number to receive assistance, followed by 195 receiving old age assistance, and 84 persons getting general assistance payments. In the lower groups, 57 received blind pension payments and 42 disabled persons were on relief. Aid to dependent children made up the largest expenditure for the month. This group received $17,216, approximately 45 per cent of the total county expenditure of $38,638. Next largest payment was $11,915 in old age assistance, followed by $3,873 in blind pensions, $3,792 was paid out in general assistance and $1,922 in aid to disabled assistance. The total number of new applications for assistance received by the department during the month from Monroe countians was 52.

Bank Officials 'Optimistic' On Branch In Monroe

WILKES-BARRE — Officials at the First Federal Savings and Loan Assn. of Wilkes-Barre are "very optimistic" that the Federal Home Loan Bank Board will approve an application to open a branch office at Eblen and N. Ninth Streets in Stroud Township. The first federal and the banking institutions opposing the branch office filed briefs May 1, based on the testimony given at the original hearing March 16, in Washington. Briefs opposing the move were filed by the East Stroudsburg Building Savings and Loan Association, Monroe Security Bank and Trust Co., East Stroudsburg, National Bank, First Stroudsburg National Bank, Keystone Building and Loan Assn. and Commonwealth Building and Loan Assn. Miss Margery Tretheway, a First Federal officer, said the home loan board "doesn't depend too much on the testimony of commercial banks, because they don't offer the long term loans a loan association does."

Becker Bible Amendment

Debate on the wisdom of adopting a 23rd amendment to the U. S. Constitution is centered on the amendment offered by Rep. Frank J. Becker, New York Republican, to allow prayer and Bible reading in public schools and other public places.

The little-known text of the Becker amendment states:

"Nothing in this Constitution shall be deemed to prohibit the offering, reading from, or listening to prayers or Biblical scriptures, if participation therein is on a voluntary basis, in a governmental or public school, institution or place.

"Nothing in this Constitution shall be deemed to prohibit reference to belief in, reliance upon, or invoking the aid of God or a supreme being in any governmental or public document, proceeding, activity, ceremony, school institution or place, or upon any coinage, currency or obligation of the United States.

"Nothing in this article shall constitute an establishment of religion."

The Becker amendment does not, as some people fear, repeal the first amendment guarantee that "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

The amendment and 145 other similar bills proposed by Congressmen would allow prayer and Bible reading in public schools or classes which choose to have them.

The Supreme Court on June 17, 1963, struck down as unconstitutional a Pennsylvania law requiring that 10 verses of the Bible be read in every public school every day but allowing any student to be excused from this required religious exercise with his parent's permission.

The Becker amendment would allow local choice and require that any Bible reading and prayer be on a voluntary basis.

The amendment would clear the air on the controversial issue and would set up ground rules for a practice long accepted by the American people—majority and minorities—as not violating their right to free exercise of religion nor setting up an established state religion.

Bible Ruling Consequences

The Supreme Court ruling against required religious exercises in public schools has had unfortunate consequences far beyond the spirit and letter of the decision itself.

Understandable fear of breaking the court's ruling and confusion as to all of its ramifications has led to an almost complete banishment of religious history, literature and ceremony from public schools.

The first effect of the ruling was to prompt many public schools to cut back or eliminate or generalize beyond recognition school plays, displays, and art work at Christmas time.

Similar difficulties arise at Easter or any other religious holiday of any religious faith.

Another unfortunate consequence was revealed last week, when Dr. LeRoy J. Koehler, president of East Stroudsburg State College, declared a one-year moratorium on baccalaureate services at college graduations.

"The board of presidents of state colleges was told (by the state attorney general) that such a service could not be held on the campus of a state college. It can only be held in a church off the campus.

"This raises the question of whether the church shall be a Catholic church or one of the Protestant denominations," Dr. Koehler said, explaining his quandary.

In another area, perhaps more important than the others, teachers of literature and history are left in doubt as to whether they will be brought to court for mentioning or reading religious history or documents.

How any student can be properly educated without studying Judeo-Christian religious history and teaching is an unanswerable question. Understanding English literature—past and present—is impossible without a literary knowledge of the Bible.

If the Bible cannot be read or discussed in public school classes, public school students will be given a poor understanding of literature.

The Supreme Court did not specifically banish these practices, but confusion among men of good will and respect for the law on these problems is understandable. But the court decision is leading to ridiculous restrictions.

So far, the Becker amendment to the Constitution is the best solution proposed. There may be a better way to clear away confusion, but lacking any definite details from the Supreme Court, the people and the Congress are naturally asked to support the Becker amendment.

Trouble at the Symphony

The Pennsylvania Story

By Mason Dension

HARRISBURG — Has the Democratic Party in Pennsylvania "broken into pieces," as Republican Governor William Scranton asserted the other day?

Frankly, it is to be doubted very much, although unquestionably for Pennsylvania Republicans it would be a delightful event to witness!

Mr. Scranton, it will be recalled, made his going-to-pot assertion following the primary battle of the past week in which Secretary of Internal Affairs Genevieve Blatt and State Justice Michael Musmanno slugged it out (vote-wise) for the Democratic U. S. senatorial nod in the organization (Musmanno) versus non-organization (Blatt) fight — with the latter for the moment at least emerging on top of the pile.

Mr. Scranton, astute politico that he has proven himself to be, certainly knows better; that it takes much more than such an intraparty fight to break a complete political party into little pieces—particularly on the Democratic side.

For that matter, perhaps Mr. Scranton was thinking only of his own Republican Party when he made the "broken into pieces" assertion. The hard facts show for one thing that Pennsylvania Republicans have been surprisingly notorious for encountering great difficulty in healing intra-party wounds following a hard, decisive and potentially divisive primary.

Curiously though, their counterparts on the Democratic side have a somewhat amazing history of literally knocking each other goggy in an oftentimes vicious primary — to emerge as arm-in-arm brethren in time for the fall general election!

Under the historical circumstances, the "broken into pieces" bit seemingly makes very little sense in this instance.

Perhaps one of the reasons the Democratic Party is more "resilient" under such intraparty pounding lies in the fact that Pennsylvania Democrats over the years have been accustomed to riding the bottom of the barrel — power-wise.

Accustomed to being the minority party they had no choice than to lick and heal their intra-party wounds to keep going; they weren't strong enough to really stand "going to pieces" in those minority days.

When they assumed the governorship and control of Capitol Hill for eight years beginning in 1955, they did so with this background — with every indication now that this trait has carried over quite well to the present time with their threatened minority status once again registration-wise, and in actuality, office-wise.

The "broken to pieces" picture seems just a little too hopeful more than anything else on the Governor's part!

One of the bitterest intra-party fights of more contemporary times in Democratic circles in the Keystone State centered around the governorship scrap back in 1958 when Roy E. Furman (who was serving as Lieutenant-Governor) battled David L. Lawrence for the Democratic gubernatorial nod.

That was a rough and tough campaign, generating much bitterness and (theoretically) ill-feeling as the two gents rode their steeds to the tournament. This was particularly true on the part of Mr. Furman.

Yet — it was at the statewide $100-a-plate fund raising dinner right here in Harrisburg in the fall of that year that Mr. Furman finally came out (literally — and figuratively; he stood up on the stage) to announce his full-blown support for his primary "enemy," David Leo Lawrence (who subsequently of course went on to become Governor).

In actuality this has become somewhat of a peculiarity of the Democratic Party in Pennsylvania — unquestionably a "plus" peculiarity. The "broken into pieces" theme seems just a wee bit farfetched in this instance!

No Death Blow

Off The Record:

—By BOB CLARK

Off The Record:

—By BOB CLARK

November is still quite a way off. But already politicians are not candidates — are tilling the soil for aspirant bids to state and U. S. offices.

The Democrats — the party organization — are licking their wounds and patching their forces for the general election. Miss Genevieve Blatt's vote-getting appeal in the primary emphatically told the party organization that they are only as powerful as the people want them to be.

Especially in Monroe County, Miss Blatt made it known that organization backing means little or nothing. The present State Secretary of Internal Affairs, although still not a winner, clobbered Judge Michael Musmanno in the battle for the county's Democratic votes.

Also Miss Blatt's showing in the primary minds that U. S. Sen. Joseph Clark is the most powerful figure in Democratic circles in Pennsylvania.

Clark, a solid supporter of Miss Blatt from the onset, threw a monkey wrench in the organization's plan to promote the aging western Pennsylvania judge for the six-year term in the U. S. Senate.

Clark, though, has opened the door for party harmony. But after the pasting the Philadelphia boss — Francis Smith — took, it will be awhile before the breach is closed. You just don't forget bitter campaigns that easily. Another thing, Smith has to lose favor with ward heelers in his halliwick, plus face across the state.

Locally, however, it must be said that the organization did not go out of its way to support Musmanno. But it had to say yes to state officials on the endorsement of the judge. The results of the Monroe district campaign are shown in Miss Blatt's 2,658 count to Musmanno's 761.

Some heads will fly because of the Clark-Blatt slap. One of these might be Otis H. Morse, a state chairman of the Democratic Party. After all he is the top man and along with Smith could feel the axe first.

But diehards are trying to let bygones be bygones. Thus you have men and women working to promote party harmony on the local, state and national levels.

The Allen-Scott Report

LBJ's Version

Paul Scott

WASHINGTON—The special investigating commission is very eager to get President Johnson's personal account of the assassination of his predecessor.

This has been discussed at several commission meetings, and it was decided to leave the matter up to the President.

That will be "informally" conveyed to him by Chief Justice Earl Warren, head of the seven-member commission named by the President to make an exhaustive inquiry into the slaying of President Kennedy.

It is assumed by commission members that whatever the President has to say will be in the form of a prepared statement.

However, should he prefer to testify in person, this would be arranged as he desired — at either a public or private session. But that is deemed most unlikely.

White House insiders have indicated the President has written a detailed account of what he saw and experienced last November 22. Whether it will be made available to the commission is not known. The investigators are hopeful it will be submitted to them.

The President was riding two cars behind the late President and Governor John Connally when they were shot by a hidden rifleman. At the first firing, a Secret Serviceman thrust Johnson to the floor of his car and covered him with his body until he reached the hospital where Kennedy was rushed. The guard was later decorated for heroism.

Anything the President does give the commission will be published in its final report.

This is in keeping with the policy agreed on by the investigators at the start — to publish all information and documents they receive. Of course, an exception could be made for the President if he requests it. Otherwise, his account will be incorporated in the commission's findings.

As exclusively revealed by this column last Wednesday, Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy has responded to the commission's invitation to give her version of her husband's murder. She will testify in person at an unannounced private session. Her statement will be part of the published report.

Still Groping — After months of intensive probing, including thousands of pages of testimony from scores of witnesses and the examination of hundreds of documents and reports of all kinds, the commission is still trying to get at the bottom of two key matters:

Lee Harvey Oswald's activities and contacts during the three years he lived in Russia as a self-avowed defector, and his marriage to a Russian whom he apparently had no difficulty bringing to the U. S. The State Department has produced little enlightening information, and seems to be dragging its feet in responding to the commission's prodding. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson and others in the Moscow embassy at the time have yet to testify on what they know about Oswald and did about his defection — if anything.

Certain gaps in the security surrounding President Kennedy on his fatal Dallas visit. For example: Why Oswald, with a known Marxist record, was not taken into "protective custody" as were others deemed potentially dangerous. The Dallas police, FBI, CIA and other security agencies had detailed files on Oswald's Marxist activities and background, yet nothing was done about him in the protective arrangements for the President and Vice President.

Mrs. Ruth Paine, who befriended the Oswalds before the assassination, has told the commission that Oswald attempted suicide while in Russia. She did not know what caused him to do this, but believed it had something to do with his rejection by the Soviet for citizenship.

From other sources, the commission has heard that a woman member of the Soviet Presidium helped Oswald when police authorities moved to expel him from Russia after the suicide incident. As a result of this mysterious influential intervention, he was allowed to remain in Russia three years, marry a Russian girl and then return to the U. S. with her without difficulty.

Mrs. Paine told the commission Oswald was subject to sudden violent outbursts of temper. He would fly into rages at the slightest provocation, at times for no apparent reason at all.

Representative Lewis Wyman, R-N.H., has caustically called attention to the ironic fact that while Mrs. Marina Oswald, widow of the assassin, has received more than $60,000 from sympathizers, only $140,000 has been contributed to the memorial fund for the 191 children left fatherless by the still-unresolved sinking of the nuclear submarine Thresher.

"We are a great people, a people with a heart of gold," Wyman told his colleagues, "but for the life of me I cannot understand such a shocking contrast; upwards of $60,000 to a single family, whose father was the assassin of our President, and less than $1,000 to each of the 191 children whose fathers made the supreme sacrifice so that we might continue to live in freedom."

"No more practical means of a real expression of appreciation of the heroism of the 129 men who gave their all can be found than giving generously to this fund for the education of their fatherless children. The address of this fund is USS THRESHER Memorial Fund, Post Office Box 388, Portsmouth, N.H."

Double Purpose Regular examination of the urine and the blood will accomplish a two-fold purpose: first, it will bring assurance to you and relieve your anxiety. Secondly, it will insure the earliest possible detection of diabetes, should it occur.

Your question about the safety of having additional children has occupied the attention of these physicians and their coworkers in a prenatal Diabetes Clinic.

Their studies seem to indicate that the emotional and physical stress of pregnancy sometimes tends to produce symptoms of diabetes in women with a family background of the disease.

Dear Abby

Play It Straight, Lady

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: We were married 14 years and I never dreamed that anything was wrong with our marriage. Suddenly my husband started to take an interest in poker. Last March he went to a poker game that lasted all week. At the end of the week, a woman called me three times in one day telling me that she and my husband were "in love" and he didn't have the nerve to ask me for a divorce. I told her if my husband wanted a divorce he would have to ask me for it. He still hasn't asked me, and I am keeping my mouth shut. But he still "plays poker" all night twice a week. I am 33, she is 20 and my husband is 35. If he gets up the nerve to ask me for a divorce, it will tear up two sets of children. Our are 5, 7, 10, and 12. Hers are 4, 3, and 10 months old. What should I do?

WAITING

DEAR WAITING: Get some counseling from either your clergyman or your family service association and try to put your marriage back on the track. Find out why it became necessary for your husband to seek female companionship elsewhere. You may not like what you learn, but it could save your marriage. Good luck.

Speaking Of Your Health:

Doctor, I'd Like To Know--

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Both my mother and father developed diabetes in their early 60's. I am 34 years old, married, with two children. Although I am considered to be emotionally stable, I often become afraid that I will inevitably become a diabetic. Is this true? Is there any way to prevent it? Is it safer for me if I do not have any more children?

Mrs. T.K.R., Kansas

Dear Mrs. R.: Most physicians agree that there is a familial pattern to diabetes. Yet this does not necessarily mean that you will develop it. At the age of 34, with a long and happy life ahead, it is unreasonable for you to forsake your potential happiness by living in constant fear of a disease that you do not have and may never have.

Stories Behind Words

by William S. Penfield

Umbrella

During a hot day a shady spot affords welcome relief from the burning rays of the sun.

Long ago man reasoned that a portable shading device would shield him from the sun as he moved.

Although the Chinese and Egyptians had used such a portable shade centuries earlier, the Italians gave us the name for it.

They called the sun-shading device "ombrella," meaning "a little shade." Despite its original meaning, we use an umbrella to protect ourselves from the rain as well as the sun.

George Dixon

Barry As President

By George Dixon

WASHINGTON — Having been elected on a promise to wipe out poverty by wiping out the poor, President Barry Goldwater reviews the developments of his first three months in office.

President Goldwater, or just plain old BG, as he is now known, looks over foreign aid and can't find any safe place to reduce it.

The John Birch society says BG's been brainwashed by the state department and the central intelligence agency.

BG postpones repeal of the income tax because by now the Goldwater administration has run out of money.

He says that before doing anything about social security a long range study is needed. He announces that the housing program will have to go on to a certain extent because to discontinue it would dislocate the construction industry.

The John Birch Society says he is a prisoner of the established bureaucracy.

BG says that until the House can do something warlike we must retain the best diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union.

ion because it is a buffer against Red China.

He says the Goldwater administration favors trade with Red China. "It will unleash American business," he says.

He resigns as USAFR Major General. "War should not be entrusted to the generals," he declares.

The John Birch Society says he's a stooge of the Reds, and is surrounded in the White House by new deal, fair deal, and new frontier plants.

BG puts off plans to invade Cuba because it would interfere with his program to cut the defense budget. "What was Cuba doing ninety miles off our shores in the first place?" he wants to know.

He says he favors giving Arizona water to California because he is the president of all the people, and there's more of them in California than Arizona. He explains that California having more electoral votes than Arizona was no factor in the decision-making process.

The John Birch Society says he's out to get votes.

He comes out against painted bombers on the basis of sound data. "I would have been against them all the time if I'd known what I know now, but McNamara (his secretary of defense held over from previous administrations) didn't tell me about it until now," he discloses.

He decides not to sell the Tennessee Valley Authority. Anyway, the only bid for it was from the El Paso Natural Gas Co.

BG says he will retain the ban on nuclear testing because he is planning to blast a new sea level canal across the Rocky Mountains, and let Panama keep its old canal. Asked at a press conference in the square room, formerly the oval room, what a new canal has to do with retention of the nuclear test ban, he says he will need all the atom bombs in the national stockpile to excavate a canal, leaving none left over for Russia.

He says he will postpone the new canal because it might offend Panama, but continue the nuclear test ban for economy reasons.

He discloses that he has found it necessary to report to Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, the reduction-in-government man, that federal employment has increased by 80,000 in his first three months in office because he had to find jobs for deserving Republicans.

He agrees to a summit conference with Soviet Premier Khrushchev. "The CIA okayed it," he reveals.

He tells a news conference what he plans to do about former Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy. "I plan to bring him back as a symbol of free enterprise," BG says.

President Goldwater announces he has decided not only to do away entirely with the oil depletion allowance but to charge the oil companies storage on oil left in the ground.

The John Birch Society says it fears that the honeymoon may be over.

Off The Record:

—By BOB CLARK

November is still quite a way off. But already politicians are not candidates — are tilling the soil for aspirant bids to state and U. S. offices.

The Democrats — the party organization — are licking their wounds and patching their forces for the general election. Miss Genevieve Blatt's vote-getting appeal in the primary emphatically told the party organization that they are only as powerful as the people want them to be.

Especially in Monroe County, Miss Blatt made it known that organization backing means little or nothing. The present State Secretary of Internal Affairs, although still not a winner, clobbered Judge Michael Musmanno in the battle for the county's Democratic votes.

Also Miss Blatt's showing in the primary minds that U. S. Sen. Joseph Clark is the most powerful figure in Democratic circles in Pennsylvania.

Clark, a solid supporter of Miss Blatt from the onset, threw a monkey wrench in the organization's plan to promote the aging western Pennsylvania judge for the six-year term in the U. S. Senate.

Clark, though, has opened the door for party harmony. But after the pasting the Philadelphia boss — Francis Smith — took, it will be awhile before the breach is closed. You just don't forget bitter campaigns that easily. Another thing, Smith has to lose favor with ward heelers in his halliwick, plus face across the state.

Locally, however, it must be said that the organization did not go out of its way to support Musmanno. But it had to say yes to state officials on the endorsement of the judge. The results of the Monroe district campaign are shown in Miss Blatt's 2,658 count to Musmanno's 761.

Some heads will fly because of the Clark-Blatt slap. One of these might be Otis H. Morse, a state chairman of the Democratic Party. After all he is the top man and along with Smith could feel the axe first.

But diehards are trying to let bygones be bygones. Thus you have men and women working to promote party harmony on the local, state and national levels.

State Grants $2,000 To Burnley Project

HARRISBURG — A State allocation of $2,000 for the Burnley Workshop of the Poconos, East Stroudsburg, was announced yesterday by Secretary of Public Welfare Arlin M. Adams.

The State funds will help in the operation of a sheltered workshop for the mentally retarded and other handicapped persons. The allocation is for the period from April 1 through June 30.

"State aid for local efforts of this type is designed to encourage community activity to help sheltered workshops in the training of handicapped persons under non-competitive working conditions. Many individuals learn jobs so well in sheltered workshops that they eventually are able to compete successfully in the open labor market," the secretary said.

Approved By Welfare Unit
The Burnley Workshop of the Poconos has been approved by the Department of Public Welfare to participate in the State aid program.

The project, initiated to fill a community need, has been actively endorsed by the Monroe County School District, the East Stroudsburg State College, the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Monroe County Mental Health Association, and other civic and service organizations which have committed themselves to give both financial and moral support to the workshop.

The workshop is being established as a memorial to the late Ralph Burnley, Jr., who, though blind, was able to carry on a successful and useful life from which he, his family, and the community derived much satisfaction and service.

Chamber Warns Buyers To Beware

STROUDSBURG — The Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce said yesterday it has received numerous complaints that several salesmen, using high pressure tactics, are traveling in the area asking residents they contact to sign contracts to buy their products or to supply a service.

"There are, of course, many legitimate salesmen who will not hesitate to have you read a contract very thoroughly before asking you to sign," the chamber warned. To protect yourself, The Daily Record in conjunction with the Chamber of Commerce, which is affiliated with the National Better Business Bureau, warns that a contract should never be signed without thoroughly understanding what the contract obligates the buyer to do.

You should never sign anything without reading it for a paper doesn't have to have the word 'contract' printed on it to be one. If you have any suspicions, or questions concerning the source of a pending purchase from a salesman, contact the Chamber of Commerce Better Business Bureau in Stroudsburg.

If you suspect or question legal phraseology, please consult a lawyer," the Chamber said.

Wind Gap Names Plan Commission

WIND GAP — Wind Gap Borough Council Monday night awarded five contracts, adopted a planning ordinance, and named five men to the planning commission.

Council approved an ordinance creating the Department of Borough Planning.

Named to the planning commission were: Myron Volles, five years; Ernest Turzto, four years; Arlo Edwards, three years; Dr. Henry Seggall, two years; and Russell Roper, one year.

Loder and Sharp Inc. was awarded the bid for 2,000 tons of crushed stone at a low bid of $1.45 per ton.

Pocono Paving Material Co., with a low bid of $6.50 per ton, was given the contract for 8 tons of bituminous asphalt, ID-2.

The contract for the borough building equipment shed went to John Goffredo and Sons, Inc. His low bid was $19,900. His bid for alternate one, an electric door was an additional $295, and for alternate four, brick facing on the building, and additional $1,290.

William Keller was awarded the contract for curbing, sidewalks and blacktopping. His low bid was $1,500.

In other business Ralph Wagner, borough secretary, told the meeting that the borough's share from Northampton County's liquid fuels will be $1,253.80.

He also said that receipts for the past month are $2,744.91.

Council also approved borrowing $1,000 to meet current operating expenses.

Bills totaling $4,665.21 were authorized for payment.

Firm Smarts At Government

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. recently indicted for price fixing by a federal grand jury, declared recently it "can no longer tolerate repeated actions taken against it by the Federal Government."

In a statement issued in conjunction with the annual stockholders meeting, President William J. Stephens said:

"... while the company is striving to compete with both domestic and foreign competition, it is forced by the recent indictment to spend precious time and money defending itself against charges which have no basis, which serve only as harassment to the entire steel industry and which greatly hinder Jones & Laughlin's efforts to serve as well as possible the interests of its customers and of the American public."

Cub Pack 129's Project: Homes For Pocono Birds

NEWFOUNDLAND — The birds in the Poconos are lucky. With all of the cub scouts of Pack 129 making birdhouses to enter in the pack contest recently.

There were three winners in the contest: Glen Stecher's was designated most colorful and resembled a windmill. Blaine Strada's was most original, and was shaped from a piece of tree trunk. James Muller's was constructed the best, and was red, white and blue with a porch around it.

The bird houses, all shapes and sizes, were judged by Richard McLain, veteran scoutmaster, and by Roy and Janet McLain, all of Greentown.

There were several skits, and a bird charade where poems about birds were read and the audience was supposed to guess which bird was which.

Ray LaVigne, cubmaster, was in charge. He presented the following awards: Mark Smith and Tom Muller, silver arrows; Edward Smith, gold arrow; Paul Evans, wolf badge; Dale Gearhart, bear badge; Doug Krautter and Ted Carr, bobcat pins.

The Webelos Den had charge of the opening ceremony. Plans were made for a trip to the Fish Hatchery at Pleasant Mount on May 17. The cubs will meet at the school in Newfoundland at 1:30 p.m. to make the trip.

Guests at the meeting were Mr. and Mrs. George Geiges, Jr., and son, George, Newfoundland; and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Welland and children, Promised Land. Refreshments were served by Den Three to the 55 persons present.

The May theme, which begins this week, will be "Our First Americans." This will be all about Indians. The pack meeting will be held on May 26.

Great Grandmom Leaves Service

Fire Damages State Hospital

DANVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Fire caused an estimated $500,000 damage recently at the Danville State Hospital. No injuries were reported.

Three large barns, five silos and an undetermined number of livestock were lost in the fire, which broke out about 1 p.m. in one of the barns.

The cause was not immediately known.

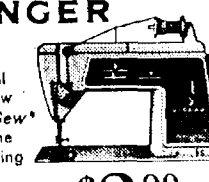

The fire started about 600 yards from the main hospital building and about 500 feet from the nearest patient building. None of the patients was in danger, authorities said.

Seems that everybody wants to drive our station wagon.

Why? Is it the three 5-foot seats? They hold the regular driver plus 9 junior drivers. Or 7 more adults. Is it because the back seats are removable? Or because the side doors open 4 feet wide? Slide a seat out and you can slide in a mode-up crib. Take both seats out and you've got room for a full-length bed. Is it because the Volkswagen, with more usable space than the biggest conventional wagon, is a good 4 feet shorter? It fits neatly into parking spots the big boys have to pass by. Is it the legendary Volkswagen mileage? The rear-engine traction? Is it the sunroof? It's also a moonroof. A rainroof, too. When the sky looks threatening, just slide the roof shut. It's windproof. Just Between Us—

by Bobby Westbrook

Dubrovnik, Yugoslavia — In the midst of ooh's and ah's and exclamation points, the traveler needs the equivalent of a work-day coffee break, the point at which he settles in for more than one night.

After the roller-coaster ride to the coast to come to Dubrovnik where we are to spend three days, where suitcases can be unpacked instead of unpeeled, where on full pensione we had the same table at each meal, the same waiters, and the same fellow travelers, was a joy beyond telling.

Dubrovnik is roughly the size of Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg together. Small enough so that its residents know each other very well, but cosmopolitan as the Peconics because of its luxury hotels. Luxurious, that is, if the water supply doesn't suddenly fall in the midst of a tooth-brushing. Dubrovnik, too has an active art group, a summer theatre, and touring opera, ballet, and kolo folk dance groups.

But Dubrovnik isn't really like the Stroudsburgs. As Regusa, the town was founded by the Illyrians, although only a half mile across, this tiny peninsula was once the center of an economic trading empire that gave us our word "argosy" i.e. "from Regusa." Managed by a Council of Seven it existed as an independent republic, for many years.

It has existed in its present form since the 16th century when it was rebuilt after a tremendous earthquake had emptied its harbor three times and the returning tidal waves had hurled 6,000 persons under the ruins.

The elegance of its town square is reminiscent of Venice and surrounded by three-story houses with shops on their ground floor and casement windows above. From the square, streets, barely an arm-widths across climb by well-worn stone steps to the wide ramparts surrounding the town. Overhead hang balconies with blooming plants and flowers and drying laundry.

On the town clock, two bronze men hang out the hours while all the pigeons whirl the air with wings and townspeople out for the traditional corso at sundown look up as their ancestors have done for hundreds of years. The Dalmatian ladies with long skirts, tiny waists and red velvet collars caught with a yellow tassel, carry their heads regally on long necks. Wives wear snowy white head-dresses tied over a frame.

Israeli Art Exhibit Set For Easton

Easton — An exhibit of Israeli and American art at Temple Covenant of Peace, Easton, May 17-19, will include the work of a young member of a kibbutz. This is a type of cooperative agricultural settlement that has played an important part in the growth of the new nation of Israel.

The artist, Ruth Schloss, a native of Germany, developed her style while living and working in such a settlement in the Holy Land. Her work shows a simple strength and vigor of kibbutz life, utilizing strong earth colors and a strong sense of lineal design. The accompanying letter by her is entitled "Daughter."

The art show will also include the work of long-established Israeli artists such as Zvi Malroovich, Okshi, Wechsler, Tumar, Binder, Borasin, and many others.

Of particular interest in the sculpture section will be several works by Hans Rawinsky, a German-born former Israeli now living in New York, who designed and executed the Memorial to the Victims of Nazi Persecution which was erected on the Temple grounds in 1962.

Other American artists to be represented are Jules Hoffant, Joseph Margulies, Saul Raskin, Harold Rotenberg, Guya Zilber, Zoltan Hecht, Yetta Bornstein, and sculptors Peggy Goldstein and Bronka Stern, among others.

The exhibit will open on Sunday, May 17, with a Sponsors' and Patrons' Preview from 4 to 6 p.m., when representatives of the Israeli Government and participating artists will be present. Mrs. Merton E. Cohen, 821 Paxinosa Avenue, Easton, is handling reservations. Thereafter the show will be open to the public without charge, as follows: Sunday, May 17, 7 to 9 p.m.; Monday and Tuesday, May 18 and 19, 10 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m. An opportunity will be presented for guided tours of school children Monday and Tuesday mornings.

The Temple is located at 15th and Northampton Streets, Easton.

while the maidens wear tiny red velvet pillboxes. The older men wear Peter-Simon-type bloomers. But they carry themselves so proudly and the costumes are so becoming that they seem anything but peasant costumes.

Both at the modern hotels which has its own beach, not of pebbles but of stone with beach chairs and lounges and umbrellas and looks across the little bay to the town walls, and in the town itself where we have made many acquaintances, we feel at home.

In the dining room, the television lounge where Italian television is played from across the Adriatic, or at the beach, we keep meeting the English couples from Lancashire, the woman from Australia who is travelling alone, the retired school teachers from New York City, and a large group of assorted Swedes who swim every-day, all day.

Since Dubrovnik has been the Stroudsburg of Yugoslavia for the Wheelers' vacation, we have also had some fascinating built-in contacts with the townspeople: the brilliant young doctor who had taken care of Robin when she was hurt in a fall last summer; the artist, Branko Koracovic, who had just returned from three triumphant months in Scottsdale, Arizona, according to the enthusiastic press clippings in American newspapers and art magazines.

Branko was equally enthusiastic about America, when we stopped at his studio for coffee. Nowhere, he said, had he found so much interest in art. "People say that in America all is business, business, business but Non a vero, non a vero," he said, slipping into Italian. "It is not true; it is propaganda. In Arizona, people did not need to prove whether they had money or not."

He has been invited to return for shows in New York and Washington and Dallas, but meanwhile took us sight-seeing, including a tour of Dubrovnik's modern art museum, of which he was the first director. It is a handsome four-story building with marble steps, wrought-iron railings, courtyards and balconies for sculpture that would make our art groups' mouths water.

The next most impressive building outside of the town gates is the school. This is something we have noticed over and over again, schools, schools, new schools. In the remote villages, the school is often the only new building.

Our hotel, the Excelesior, has a tremendous new addition in the skeleton stage, where it has been for more than a year when the Workers' Council decided they had a more pressing problem in bringing in more water. Meanwhile, the present hotel is just the proper size for personal service, magnificent five-course meals, and cozy gatherings for coffee in the hot sun at the beach where the blue sea, whale-shaped island and ancient town compose themselves to fill the eye as satisfactorily.

The Brennans In Europe After Carbondale Wedding

Carbondale—Miss Judith H. McGranaghan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. McGranaghan, of 62 North Main St., Carbondale, was married on April 18 in St. Rose of Lima Church, to James M. Brennan, of 519 Sarah St., Stroudsburg.

He is the son of Mrs. Rita Brennan and the late James Brennan, of Honesdale Road, Waymart.

Rev. Vincent Harrity performed the 10 a.m. ceremony. The church was decorated with gold vases of white gladiolas and tangerine carnations with palm foliage in scalene design.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of silk peau de sole with fitted bodice and elbow sleeves headed in pearls. The semi-bell skirt was headed at the bottom and had a detachable train. Her four-tier veil of pure silk illusion fell from a beaded pillbox. She carried a bridal crescent of sonora sweetheart roses with iridescent and white satin pilot.

Miss Ellen Brennan, sister of the bridegroom, of Waymart, as maid of honor, wore a floor-length gown of two-toned French blue silk taffeta with fitted bodice, square neckline, and a back bow. She wore a pillbox of the same color and carried a crescent of sweetheart roses with orange delight roses.

Robert Sweeney, Jr., of Jessup, was best man, and William Moyley, Carbondale, and John Sweeney, of Jessup, were ushers. A dinner for the immediate families was held at the Hotel American in Carbondale.

The bride, a graduate of St. Rose High School, was employed at the First and Farmers National Bank, Forest City. Mr. Brennan, a graduate of Waymart High School, and Lackawanna Academy of Beauty Culture, is employed by Matthew and Nicholas, Stroudsburg.

Leaving for a honeymoon in Europe, the bride wore a blue suit with black accessories and a corsage of gardenias. On their return they will make their home at 519 Sarah St., Stroudsburg.

AAUW Ends Year With Buffet

Stroudsburg — The annual buffet supper brought the year to a close for the Stroudsburg branch of the American Assn. of University Women on Monday night at the Stroud Community House with Mrs. Lois W. Mirandon as chairman of the hostess committee.

Dr. Lura Evans, president, announced the appointment of Mrs. Robert Sullivan as chairman of membership and of Mrs. Nicholas Stowell as chairman for the newly-formed Memorial Book Committee.

She announced that Vernetta Decker, a member of the local AAUW, had been honored by her college when the Vernetta F. Decker Hall at Trenton State College was named in her honor.

The program, introduced by Mrs. Warren Miller, was "American by the Yard." Albert Leach of Gruff Fabrics, New York, presented samples of American fabrics with designs taken from source material found in the Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn, Mich.

Many of the designs were copied from old coins, plates, oil painting, old posters, stone ware and cookie molds. Many of the fabrics had correlated wallpaper.

New members introduced were Mrs. Marvin Rosen, Mrs. Samuel Newman, Mrs. Francis Perretta, and Mrs. Richard Davis, a transfer member from the Toledo, Ohio, branch.

Spelunking, Diving Lunch Amuse Scouts

NEWFOUNDLAND — A sliding lunch, a beaver dam, and some spelunking, intrigued the Junior Girl Scouts of Troop 253 when they took a Nature hike in connection with the observer badge for which they are all working.

With Cindy Haldeman and Carol Welland leading through "home territory," Debbie Banks, Carol Butler, Linda Gilpin, and Barbara Simons, plus leaders Ethel Wohlfart and Pauline Gilpin, started off from the Catholic Church in Promised Land. They went to Pyle Island, exploring the Nature Trail in the State Park. They explored the caves in the area (and will no doubt be winning their spelunking awards); had lunch on top of a cliff where Mrs. Wohlfart's elusive lunch slid to the bottom without even damaging an orange or misplacing a sandwich; and saw a beaver dam where the chips were still warm from being chomped away from the trees by the busy beavers.

The troop has welcomed a new girl, Barbara White, who transferred from the Gouldsboro Troop.

The Juniors joined Cadettes and Brownies in viewing camp slides of the various camps for Girl Scouts in the area. They are working on their badges, and met with Mrs. Joan Nevin recently to discuss bicycling in England. They are working on the cyclist badge and are preparing for a cycle trip in May.

Also on the calendar for May is one more hike, during which they will do some outdoor cooking.

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

TALKING TO MYSELF (on the typewriter)

How nice to see Verna Kohn, but how sad that her father, Howard Chester, is hospitalized—and just after returning from a visit with her in Florida. As Mrs. T. I. Metzgar pointed out when the two visited our Keystone Room together, "You can certainly tell that she's a native Floridian now, can't you?" Undeniably her tan is beautiful—but I'm sure all their Monroe County friends would be just as happy to have the Kohns pale-faced and LOCAL.

One of the visitors to our Keystone Room the other afternoon told me that she is very grateful to me for something I said on the air about two years ago. "At that time, I was having a great deal of trouble and expense with hosiery," she told me. "One pair of stockings after another went to pieces almost as soon as I purchased them. Apparently you were having the same trouble, because you mentioned what excellent wear you were getting from Cameo walking sheers after trying other stockings and finding them unsatisfactory. I took your advice and tried them, and agreed with you. They are wonderful, and wear splendidly. I'm always thankful to you for mentioning it." And I am always thrilled when I know people are listening to our Wyckoff radio program and finding it helpful... I had never seen artificial laurel before—but we have it in our International Gift Center and it is surprisingly realistic. Each spray is 25¢, and since laurel isn't a flower you can just go out and pick at random, this is an excellent opportunity to have our State Flower (to which we Pocono Mountaineers lay particular claim) in our homes.

When one is as enchanted by colored glass as I, it isn't such a thrifty idea to work in a department store such as Wyckoff's. I positively ache to own one of those ornamental apothecary jars being sold for just 5.98 in our International Gift Center. Ann Haller has filled them with flowers, but these are not included, of course, at that price. The jars come in amber, delicate green, amethyst, and royal blue. They're dazzling!

The fad for "his and her" items goes on and on and on. Right now, we have His and Her yachting pajamas by Weldon, with "hers" being on display in our Lingerie Department. They are red, white, and blue. The garment itself is white, with the red and blue being used in solid color "flags" that form pockets down the front of the pajama top. The sets are 5.00, and I understand there's a topper at the same price.

I have been hearing so many fine things about "young Jim Ottaway" for so long and have found him so approachable on the numerous occasions I've telephoned The Daily Record, that it was a real pleasure to meet him this past Saturday afternoon when a group of prominent local residents met in our Tea Room to select the title for this year's Hadassah-Wyckoff Fashion Show. In addition to the Daily Record's editor, the judges were Chester Miller, manager of WVPO; and Mrs. Frank Patterson, one of our county's most attractive women. Meeting with them were Norma Greenstein and Ruth Samel, co-chairmen of the committee. The name selected was "A Garden of Fashions," submitted by Mrs. Russell Beck, 105 E. Broad Street, East Stroudsburg. She receives two tickets to the show, on Wednesday evening, June 24th, as well as dinner for two, and 5.00 for her favorite charity. Nice "thank you's" for a picturesque name!

Most striking looking woman in our store the other afternoon was the young and chic representative of Rockwell silver, the non-tarnishing silver sold in our International Gift Center. It is usually found in trims on crystal ware which is tuned to the silver anniversary and other extraordinary elegant uses... Shop Wyckoff's most days until 5:30; Mondays and Fridays until 9.

Christmas Card Bonus Brings Recipes From Georgia Friend

By Linda Pipher
Daily Record Home Economist
Stroudsburg—One thing I look forward to in December is the out of town Christmas cards, for it means renewing old friendships. If it weren't for the once-a-year letter with the card, I'm afraid I would lose contact with many friends from high school and college days.

One girl, whose friendship goes way back to the eighth grade of school when her father came to Stroudsburg as the Methodist minister, is Betty Thomas. After high school we went to Syracuse together and both of us studied Home Economics. After college we went separate ways, but have managed to keep in contact via Christmas letters.

So I was surprised to receive a letter from her before Christmas. She and her husband, Herb, and their two sons, live in Atlanta, Georgia, and Betty thought I might like a Southern recipe for pecan pie which is a Georgia favorite.

Rev. and Mrs. Thomas had visited Stroudsburg in the Fall for a Methodist Church anniversary celebration, and Mrs. Thomas had seen one of these columns and sent it on to Betty. Betty tells me that they have a lot of good nuts in Georgia—pecans, for instance.

Betty's Pecan Pie
1 cup granulated sugar
1 cup dark corn syrup
3 eggs
4 tablespoons melted butter or oil
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup broken pecan meats
Beat eggs well, add sugar and syrup, mix well. Add melted butter, vanilla, and pecans. Pour into an unbaked pie shell and bake at 400 degrees for 15 minutes, then 325 degrees for 30 to 40 minutes. Cool and serve with or without whipped cream.

When I sent my Christmas card to her, I thanked her for the recipe and asked her to send some more Southern recipes when she had the chance. Recently I had a newsy letter from her plus the recipes! This time she sent another recipe using pecans which she says is popular down her way for bridge lunches and buffet suppers.

Pecan Tarts
Crust:
1 stick (½ cup) margarine
1 3-oz. package cream cheese
1 cup flour
Combine and roll in small balls. Place in muffin tins and press against sides to form hollow for the filling.
Filling:
1 egg
1 cup light brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup pecans
Combine and spoon into crust in muffin pans. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes (it may take a shorter time for small muffin tins). Top with whipped cream and serve.

These tarts can be kept a day without any trouble, which makes them nice for entertaining.

In her letter, Betty said that down South, you eat either Chix or Ham and that she was in the Chix class. Chix sounded like cereal to me but when I read the recipe, no cereal! So I looked it up in the dictionary, encyclopedia, and a gourmet encyclopedia, and no Chix! After rereading the recipe, I decided that it must be a Southern term for creole chicken—anyway, sounds good, honey!

Southern Chicken Creole
Casserole
1 frying chicken, 2½ to 3 pounds, cut up
Flour
5 tablespoons fat
1 onion, sliced thin
1 can tomatoes (No. 2 can)
1 carrot, diced
½ teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon salt
2 whole cloves
1 cup raw rice
1½ cups water
Fry onions in fat. Shake chicken and flour in a paper bag until coated and brown in fat after removing onions. When chicken is golden brown, remove from frying pan and place in casserole dish that has a cover. Combine carrot, tomatoes, spices and water. Sprinkle rice and tomatoes mixture over the chix and rice. Be sure rice is moistened with the liquid. Cover and bake in a 350 degree oven about one hour, until chicken is fork tender.

This last recipe is for a rich custard pie that Betty says is typically Southern.

Chess Pie
4 eggs
1 cup milk
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 unbaked pie crust
Beat eggs, add sugar, vanilla, milk and nutmeg. Blend well. Pour into unbaked pie shell, dot with 5 teaspoons butter, sprinkle with nutmeg and cinnamon. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes and 325 degrees for 20 minutes, until silver knife comes out clean.

Betty closed her letter with, "Our best to everyone in Stroudsburg. It doesn't seem possible it has been 14 years since we left there, to say nothing of 14 years out of college. Land, Pete, we could almost be called 'old!' Amen, Betty, Amen!"

There's Room At The Top Now For Government Girls

By Roberta Fleming Roesselt
The doors to federal service are wide open to the gentler sex — especially since the President himself has said he wants at least 50 women promoted to top positions in government! And one woman, U.S. Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, has announced herself as a candidate for the top-most federal post of all — the Presidency, itself!

"Women have not even begun to exploit their opportunities for interesting careers with the government, and their opportunities have never been greater," explains Della Kuhn, a former public servant herself and co-editor with her husband, Ferdinand, of the recently published book, "Adventures in Public Service."

Explanatory Chapter
The last chapter of the Kuhn's new book discusses — especially for young readers — opportunities now open with the government, how and where to get information on civil service careers and where and when various examinations are given.

The rest of the book contains biographical sketches of eight people who have had distinguished careers serving the U.S. Government.

Award Winners
Each person profiled was a recent winner of a Rockefeller Public Service Award, a private honor for outstanding career service in the government. The purpose of the award is to point up the challenges, rewards and personal fulfillment such careers offer.

While the stories in the book are about men exclusively, Mrs. Kuhn makes it clear that in the past there have been several women in government who deserve to have won Rockefeller Public Service Awards. These include an aeronautical research scientist, a lawyer, two bureau chiefs in the Department of Labor and two economists.

For young women as well as young men, she points out, working in public service has tremendous advantages.

These include jobs that are interesting in themselves, opportunities for steady advancement, security, stimulating colleagues, better pay than most people realize and, most important, the real satisfaction that comes from knowing that you are doing something that is both useful and in the service of your country.

Wide Variety
The variety of careers possible under civil service is astonishing. With 70 departments and agencies offering hundreds of different kinds of jobs to choose from, any young man or woman, Mrs. Kuhn explains, is probably equipped to do some job in the federal government no matter what training or studies had been taken in school.

"Never has the federal government been more interested in recruiting talented young people," she says. "And never has federal service been a more stimulating field, in which to work than it is now."

Book Review Challenges Role Of Church In City

Tannersville—Mabel Huffman presented a book review when the Lutheran Church Women of St. Paul's met at the church on April 28. Reviewed was "My Brother Is A Stranger," by Bruce Hilton, a newspaper man in Dayton, Ohio.

The setting for the book was a changing city—not just a particular city but every city. There churches are either closing their doors or are moving to suburban areas.

Mrs. Huffman gave a "birds-eye view" of the city, from the slums to the exclusive sections. It was pointed out that all are brothers, but do we treat all as such.

The meeting closed with the missionary benediction. Refreshments were served by Evelyn Dodd, Phyllis DeHaven and Marie Gravatte.

Five questions were asked for each member to ponder. What is the function of the church in helping people adjust to change? What can a rural church do to help meet the challenge of the changing city? Are you concerned about your brother? Does your church minister effectively to all? Is your brother a stranger?

Marie Gravatte read the Scripture lesson. The offering service was conducted by Betty Woodling.

Cora Sebring presided at the business session. A report on the March meeting was presented by Marilyn Sebring. Vera Walter gave a report on the finances of the organization.

Faith and life secretary, Evelyn Dodd, reminded members that LCW Week would be held at Muhlenberg College, Allentown, July 14 through July 17.

Betty Woodling, outreach and fellowship secretary, urged members to see that their monthly offerings were sent if they were unable to attend a meeting.

Membership in the Monroe County World Council of Church Women was retained and dues paid.

Ruth Learn and Nita Morris reported on the Spring Assembly held at St. Luke's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Easton, on April 23. The program was a Bible study. This proved to be so inspiring that the four local LCW members who attended suggested that similar Bible studies be conducted at monthly LCW meetings at St. Paul's. It was noted that 116 persons were present at the Assembly. Twenty-three of the 27 churches in the district were represented.

Announcement was made that

Miss Driebe Attending School Of Design
New York — Miss Rosemary J. Driebe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward K. Driebe of 510 Thomas St., Stroudsburg, is attending the New York School of Interior Design in New York City.

Cy Barrett Says

Long Shot Pays

By Cyrus Barrett, Jr.

DEAR CY: College graduate this and college graduate that! All I hear is how big men graduated from this or that college. Didn't any of our successful men go to the School of Hard Knocks? OIL YOU.

DEAR OIL YOU: The odds against success without a formal education grow longer, but Charles W. Lubin booted himself home a winner. He began his business career at the age of 14 as a baker's apprentice. For 16 years he worked for other bakers.

Then, together with his brother-in-law, he made a great gamble in 1935. With $700 of their savings and $800 in borrowed money, they purchased three retail bakeries. Charles Lubin then experimented with specialty baked goods. He conceived of the idea of offering the American consumer top quality baked goods through supermarkets. In 1951 the Kitchens of Sara Lee was born and President Lubin confounded food experts by introducing a frozen 79 cents coffee cake, when standard prices in supermarkets were 29 cents to 49 cents.

Later he was instrumental in developing the aluminum foil pan which enabled his company to bake cakes in the same package they would be sold. The Kitchens of Sara Lee rang up 35 million dollars in sales at the nation's check-out counters last year. In 1964, Lubin expects to triple his volume through opening a new 25 million dollar bakery. Not bad for an ex-baker's apprentice with a little education... and a bit idea!

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Wednesday, May 6, 1964
March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Keep figures and facts straight. Don't stretch budget too far. Do not hesitate to spend a bit in a round venture. Special offerings now, chosen wisely.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — While "stalling" out developments in a situation, awaiting the decisions of others or a new assignment, do not let yourself be sidetracked by others' talk or actions. Progress can be consistent.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Note Taurus' your advice similar. Keep your mind on V.I.T. tasks, and do not let yourself be sidetracked by others' talk or actions. Progress can be consistent.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — You'll be the one to pop things up when progress seems slow. This may be your "stalling" out developments in a situation, awaiting the decisions of others or a new assignment. Do not let yourself be sidetracked by others' talk or actions. Progress can be consistent.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Don't let the size of all steps to be taken, and do not let yourself be sidetracked by others' talk or actions. Progress can be consistent.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Be discriminating in accepting suggestions and advice. Good, others' impractical. Now opportunities indicated — same as last week, but at first, keep working.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — You will get from this day what you put into it. Some rewards will be delayed, as always. Scientific and educational matters especially favored.

October 24 to November 23 (Scorpio) — Your best bet is to ask that is asked, but that is asked throughout the day—in big and little things, for a grand total that will please your own discriminating taste.

November 24 to December 23 (Sagittarius) — Avoid persons and situations which could affect your work or health adversely. A few drawbacks, some contention indicated.

December 24 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Look to your own knowledge, intuition and intelligence to lead you through day's challenges. They should prove highly stimulating.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Look to your own knowledge, intuition and intelligence to lead you through day's challenges. They should prove highly stimulating.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Guard speech, rule out anxiety, and prudently. Do not let yourself be sidetracked by others' talk or actions. Progress can be consistent.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Keep figures and facts straight. Don't stretch budget too far. Do not hesitate to spend a bit in a round venture. Special offerings now, chosen wisely.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — While "stalling" out developments in a situation, awaiting the decisions of others or a new assignment, do not let yourself be sidetracked by others' talk or actions. Progress can be consistent.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Note Taurus' your advice similar. Keep your mind on V.I.T. tasks, and do not let yourself be sidetracked by others' talk or actions. Progress can be consistent.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — You'll be the one to pop things up when progress seems slow. This may be your "stalling" out developments in a situation, awaiting the decisions of others or a new assignment. Do not let yourself be sidetracked by others' talk or actions. Progress can be consistent.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Don't let the size of all steps to be taken, and do not let yourself be sidetracked by others' talk or actions. Progress can be consistent.

DEAR CY:

What about the career of exotic dancers? A dear friend of mine has a terrific figure and took dancing lessons since she began wearing shoes. These are almost her only attributes. Do you think she could hit the big time in exotic dancing?

DEAR JOE:

Do your dear friend with shoes and a figure a favor. Explain top billing as an exotic dancer requires more than being a hooper with no bikini.

Take the case of Lee Sharon, featured at Sweet Wilson's Stork Club in Houston, Texas. Lee is a gorgeous gal who projects personality in contrast to flashy, raw sex. This 5-foot, 10-inch, action-packed bundle of pulchritude sets the stage afire with her voice and grace. At the Tropicana, in Las Vegas, she was surrounded by a cast of 80 as she worked 365 days without a break. In London, Sharon appeared before royalty. Personality! That's a major reason why Ann Corio and Sally Rand can stay in the business.

DEAR CY: "Who cares whether our books balance, as long as we have enough money?" is my husband's idea of living on a budget. He knows I can never make our income and outgo balance and that I get sick headaches working at it. I let down what he spends and what I pay out each month. Then I try to match the total with his paychecks. The figures never come out right. Is it possible I am making some foolish mistake in arithmetic, or do families have hidden expenses?

MRS. JUDY D. A trained seal couldn't balance your books. Your husband is cheating by not reporting to you all he is spending. This is done daily by millions and millions of husbands (and wives) who don't let you know what they are doing. If he must cheat, this is probably the best place to do it.

Wayne Development Group Weighs Purchase Of Plant

HONESDALE — Possible employment for more than 100 men of the Honesdale area yesterday hinged on the need for a large down payment by the Wayne Industrial Development Co.

Plans proposed are for the purchase of the former Yuba plant in Honesdale with hopes that the property can be sold to a large industrial concern for a new plant on the site.

Thomas Ginsky, president of the WID Co., said that if the industrial development agency were to purchase the Yuba plant a $50,000 down payment must be made to Industrial Plants, Inc., owners of the site.

The purchase price of the plant and land has been set at $120,000. WID Co.'s 60-day option on the property expired on the last day of April, but Mr. Ginsky said the owners granted an extension until yesterday.

He reported that two Honesdale banks had pledged gifts of $10,000 each to WIDCO for purchase of the property and that other Honesdale businessmen had pledged $13,000 to the special fund. This makes a total of $33,000 leaving a balance of $17,000 that must be raised to meet the down payment.

Civil Rights Legislation Discussed

EAST STROUDSBURG — Dr. Richard W. Taylor spoke on the civil rights legislation in Congress last night at East Stroudsburg State College — and Jesse Lynch of the local NAACP gave an insight into the real problem of the Negro.

Dr. Taylor, the featured speaker at the graduate studies — sponsored lecture, and Washington lobbyist with the Friends Committee, threw light on some of the purposes of the bill and the legislative boggies that have befallen it.

But it was at the end of the program, during the question and answer period, when a graduate student from Lehigh asked, "Do you (Dr. Taylor) think the recent World's Fair demonstrations helped or hurt the bill's chances?"

Dr. Taylor said that the demonstrations probably wouldn't hurt the bill's chances in the Senate, but might change feelings toward it.

Lynch then said: "The CORE demonstrations at the Fair could only harm the movement because they were not related to a definite goal. But I can say this because I've lived almost all my life in Pennsylvania."

"The president of the Brooklyn CORE chapter which instigated the demonstrations was from North Carolina. Perhaps he was driven to this by his past experience."

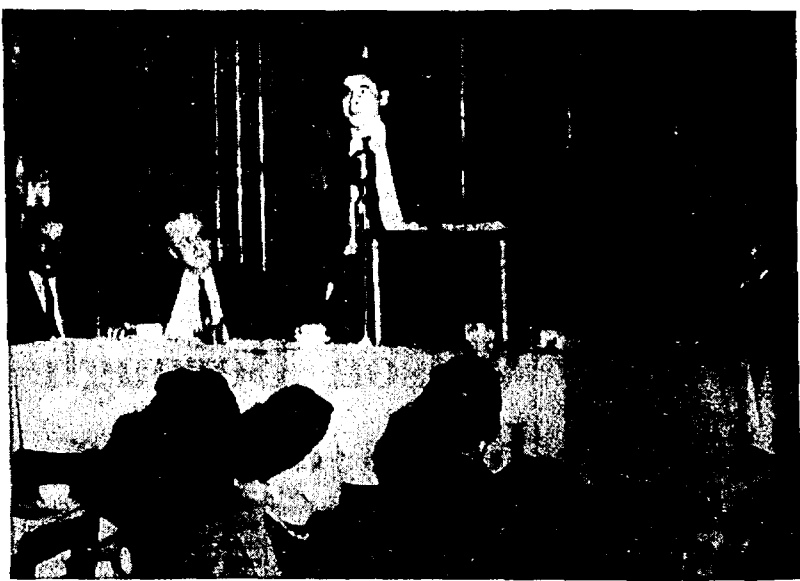

"Living where I live — in the north — I have sometimes been driven. How much more must this man have endured? So, I can sympathize with him, but because I am from where I am from, I can't say he was right."

Prof. Rocco J. Tresolini, head of the Government Dept. at Lehigh and noted authority on constitutional law as it applies to civil rights, later in the program made note of Lynch's remarks.

"Concerning Mr. Lynch's statement," Prof. Tresolini said, "I must say that it's presumptuous for a white man to say, 'This is right and that is wrong.' 'Must Make Decision'."

"I think the individual Negro must make this decision. 'One hundred years from now, when the American Negro is totally integrated, the shillest remembrance of this whole mess will be the courage, patience, humility, and non-violence of the American Negro,' Tresolini said.

Dr. Taylor's excerpted remarks went: "We are all participating in a human rights revolution, along with a technological one and a military one. In the military revolution, we find the production of weapons bringing us to the age of the 'over-kill' and collective suicide. 'Is Congress participating in this civil rights revolution? This is the question — Is Congress inactive? Is it like the town council in Isen's 'Enemy of the People'?"

"We find a filibuster in the Senate: the filibuster is to the crucial legislative problem as the smoke from a locomotive is to the push of the wheels."

"It's very difficult for Congress to make any decision. It is comprised mostly of lawyers not prepared to deal with problems as a whole."

"They personalize problems and dramatize them. Everything seems to be black or white, demonic or angelic to Congress."

"In this inactive frame of reference, Congress has been called upon to make a civil rights decision."

"I think the Senate will pass a slightly amended but not crippled civil rights bill. It should be signed by the president by July 1."

"It should give us better laws in the areas of public accommodation and facilities, voting laws, employment, and should be a step toward human dignity. 'It will take time to realize this promise of dignity, however.'"

"The legislation is merely an indication of a will — a national purpose to make all citizens equal."

"The lobbyist alone and the Congressman alone can do little to promote the purpose of this legislation. What we need is concern. Concern by everyone."

"For instance, the president will have to pay in votes if the job of passing the legislation is not done. I might add that the president is more forthright on this issue than any other president in our history."

Birochers Foes — "The current Senate fight is about the closure of the filibuster — not civil rights. The John Birch Society is trying to defeat this legislation," he said.

Kurt Wimer of ESSC's social studies department asked Dr. Taylor if he had visited any Pennsylvania Senators in his lobbying activities in Washington.

"I don't waste my time on Senators who are already committed to this legislation," Taylor said.

Wimer then asked Dr. Tresolini if, under the bill, the attorney general would get too much power.

"I say an unequivocal No!" Tresolini said.

"There are built-in safeguards in the bill. But the question of power is not the issue... It's like Gov. Wallace always talking about states rights and avoiding the name of segregation and bigotry."

"Arguments about power are held when in Mississippi, a legislator shot a Negro because the Negro asked him to support the Negro cause."

"While this is happening, we must invest the federal government with the power to bring such men to justice. The legislator wasn't tried because the only other witness was found dead," Tresolini added.

Sidewalks, Curbs Repairs Urged

Bangor Council Pushes Market St. Work

BANGOR — A long discussion relative to the reconstruction of Market St., now underway, regarding sidewalks, curbs, and other related damages was held Monday night at the Bangor Borough Council meeting.

Elwood Parsons, chairman of the sidewalk committee, told the meeting that residents of that street had been informed repairs on curbs and sidewalks would be necessary. Repairs were to be completed within 30 days, from April 6, so as not to retard construction.

Council, in an effort to speed construction, agreed to have Collins and Maxwell Contractors make the repairs at $4 a running foot for curbing. Property owners will be billed for their share of the expense.

Damage Complaints — Letters relative to damages to sidewalks between Eighth and Twelfth Streets on Market Street were ordered sent to the contractor and the state highway department. Council feels that it has no liability or responsibility for these damages.

Further reports on street repairs were made by Merlyn Tucker, chairman of the street committee, who indicated that the program for general street repairs in the coming months is being studied jointly with the state highway department.

Tougher Policy On Cyprus Urged — LONDON (AP)—Harold Wilson, leader of the Labor party, urged tougher steps to quell the Cyprus violence which he said "is getting perilously near to supervised genocide."

Approved By State Council was told that Grant J. Metzgar had been approved by the state as Civil Defense chairman and the council also approved the appointment of Benjamin Albert as fire chief.

President John Cascioli welcomed pupils from the Bangor High School who attended the meeting. These pupils will serve on May 15 as borough officers in celebration of Government Day. They were presented to council by Earl Lutz, senior high school council advisor.

The students to serve as borough officers are Joseph DeThomas, Edmund Joella, Richard Traves, Marsha Smith, Craig Hess, Sharon Lowe, Carolyn Dutt, Allen Bet, Lonnie Wilderick, Glenn Grigg, Sherwood Heard, and Earl Miller.

A resolution for the improvement of street lighting in the borough was approved.

A complaint brought by Councilman Roderick Everett relative to junk collections on a property at New and Northampton Streets was referred to the law committee for investigation.

Upon the recommendation of Miles Heller, chairman of the safety committee, council authorized the payment of a balance of $9,950 on the borough's new fire truck.

Daniel Phillips, chairman of the sewer committee, gave the following report: bank balance, $39,573.57; expenses for April, $1,741.48, and income, $12,634.99.

He also noted that the authority and the contractor is replacing damaged pillars at the sewer plant and also new steel stairways. He also reported the state department has said Bangor's sewer plant residue has been found to be the purest in the state.

Approved By State Council was told that Grant J. Metzgar had been approved by the state as Civil Defense chairman and the council also approved the appointment of Benjamin Albert as fire chief.

and Russell T. Brown as assistant for the year ending May 1, 1965.

Chief Albert told the meeting five losses in the past year amounted to $22,050 in 38 alarms.

The cost of Bangor's share in the operation of Blue Mountain Control Center was questioned by Everett. He was told by councilman Samuel Hicks that the Bangor appropriation to this operation has been the same each year since 1958. This amount Hicks said is $5,000 and that in no single year was the amount ever spent.

Garbage Truck Repairs — Approval was made to expend $1,980 for repairs to the borough's garbage truck and a report on the borough's insurance program was made by solicitor J. Lawrence Davis and councilman Troy Reigel.

Daniel Phillips and Merlyn Tucker were approved as delegates to the state convention of boroughs in Pittsburgh on June 28 through July 1.

Bills amounting to $13,451 were approved for payment.

The following balances were noted in various accounts, general, $9,197.02; state highway aid fund, $12,424.24.

19 Tax Exonerations Granted

DELAWARE WATER GAP — Mrs. Willard Kitchen, borough tax collector, asked council for exonerations for 19 persons whose taxes total $123.64, at a meeting Monday night. Her request was granted.

In other business Harold Crasdale requested council to annex a portion of his property into the borough. His request was turned over to Borough Solicitor Harry F. Lee for study and drawing up the necessary papers.

Lee also presented to council

Battle Against Mentally Ill

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Ephraim H. Royce, Meadowbrook, Montgomery County, this week-end was named associate director of the comprehensive mental health - retardation planning project at $13,301 a year.

The announcement was made by State Public Welfare Secretary Arlin M. Adams, who also is chairman of the Governor's Council for Human Services.

Royce's duties will involve coordinating the work of 40 task forces responsible for planning comprehensive services for the mentally ill and mentally retarded.

a proclamation for the celebration of the 75th anniversary of the Borough of Delaware Water Gap. The Delaware Water Gap Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring the celebration.

Council passed two ordinances. One was to annex property of Donato Lettini. The second was reducing the speed on all borough streets. The legal speed in the borough will be 25 miles per hour, except at the school zone where the speed is 15 MPH.

Council also authorized Edward Hess, borough engineer, to figure the cost for repairing Mountain Rd.

Also authorized was the obtaining of prices for a new roof on the borough shed, the former DL&W Railroad station in the borough.

Bangor Drivers Collide Head-On

BANGOR — Cars driven by Frederick Yabaras, 25, and Joseph M. Davanzo, 43, both of Bangor collided almost head-on Sunday night on the Martins Creek Road about one mile south of Bangor in Washington Twp. There were no injuries reported.

State Police at Easton said Yabaras, traveling north, apparently fell asleep. The investigation is being continued by Trooper Steve Shutta.
